Dear Elliot:

A concerned constituent wrote to me about an inmate at Argentina's Rawson prison by the name of Pablo Bohoslavski. It seems Bohoslavski's original sentence of one year and six months was increased to four years and six months with "restrictions for life" for no known reason. I also learned that the charge handed down by a military tribunal was: illicit possession of weapons and explosives.

It would be a great help to me if you could keep me informed of any changes in his situation.

Sincerely,

JULIAN C. DIXON
